

Notes from the blogosphere: an anthology of geopolitics, Brussels and beyond

As geopolitical shifts and technological advances cause the world we know to change in ways we never thought possible, the blogosphere has become a dominant medium of communication in the 21st century. In the digital age, power is now in the hands of anyone with a keyboard. Critically acclaimed blogger Dean Carroll attempts to make sense of the maelstrom of data with an anthology of posts stretching across the arenas of politics, economics, technology and international affairs. A must read for the global citizen.
