

The Manifesto of the Digital Revolution: Reflections, Observations & Forecast

What is the Digital Revolution? Has it passed? Is it happening right now? Or are we in the twilight hour before dawn, the future yet to be discovered? This manifesto draws a straightforward image of the current state of the Silicon Valley through the eyes of a young entrepreneur who draws for us a snapshot of the highlights of the technological scene along with some forecasts about the future. There are no final answers or absolute truths, as we are in the midst of a rapidly changing evolutionary time. Only the future will tell what will have happened as new industries are born and established ones begin to crumble. We may look back at these times as the onset of a new economical, social, and interpersonal stage in human evolution. This manifesto aims to raise awareness and communicate to you, the reader, a better understanding of what each and every one of us contributes and how we are all a part of it, whether we want to be or not.
